TOUCHDOWN! AIRTRAN AIRWAYS LANDS IN HUNTSVILLE/DECATUR TO TACKLE HIGH FARES

- Airline Brings Low Fares and Convenient Access to Destinations Nationwide -

ORLANDO, Fla. (May 27, 2010) – AirTran Airways, a subsidiary of AirTran Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: AAI), today launched daily nonstop service between Huntsville International Airport and both Baltimore-Washington International Thurgood Marshall Airport and Orlando International Airport.

“AirTran Airways is pleased to bring quality low fare service to Huntsville, Alabama,” said John Kirby, senior director of strategic planning, AirTran Airways. “Whether traveling to our National’s Capital or Central Florida’s attractions and Space Coast, residents of the Rocket City will enjoy affordable business class, Wifi on every flight and complimentary XM radio in every seat. “

To celebrate the inaugural flight, Cadillac Williams, Alabama native and running back for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, helped the airline donate tickets to the American Red Cross North Alabama /Tennessee Valley Region.

“The addition of AirTran to our community is a major milestone – not only in terms of helping to lower fares for passengers but also from an economic development standpoint as well as tourism,” said Mayor Tommy Battle, City of Huntsville. “The potential savings with the new service is phenomenal, and I strongly encourage the community to support this new low-cost carrier.”
