FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

US AIRWAYS DOUBLES THE FUN IN HUNTSVILLE BY LOWERING FARES FOR THE SECOND TIME IN SIX MONTHS

Due to overwhelming response, airline lowers fares to 18 additional markets

Formatted: Normal

TEMPE, Ariz., Jan. 31, 2007 —US Airways (NYSE: LCC) is lowering fares a second time by as much as 54 percent to 18 additional cities from Huntsville, Ala., as the airline continues the popular fare reductions it set in motion last year after merging with America West. With this change, US Airways has lowered its fares in more than 1,100 markets so far and introduced its customer-friendly pricing structure system-wide with the elimination of the Saturday night stay requirement.

Fares are available immediately and can be booked at www.usairways.com, by calling 800-428-4322 or through a travel agent.

US Airways first lowered fares in Huntsville last September, by as much as 73 percent to 25 destinations. "Huntsville has shown great support of our fare reduction initiative," said Travis Christ, vice president, sales and marketing for US Airways. "We are pleased to come back to this market with even more affordable fares to even more popular destinations."

"US Airways continues to provide service to markets that are important to the citizens of Huntsville," said Jeff Sikes, chairman, board of directors, Huntsville International Airport. "These additional fare reductions reaffirm US Airways commitment and dedication to lower fares. Our partnership with US Airways allows many new opportunities, and we look forward to bringing those opportunities to Huntsville."

Markets seeing reduced fares include Knoxville, Tenn. and Minneapolis with walk up fares lowered by 48 percent and 47 percent respectively. Snow bunnies and beachgoers alike will revel in lowered fares to Colorado Springs, Colo. and Sarasota, Fla., with reductions of 38 percent and 54 percent respectively.
